THE FUTURE IS HERE

VOLUNTEER PROGRAM

THE FUTURE IS HERE »
28 AUGUST – 11 OCTOBER 2014
PROJECT ROOM 1, 2 & 3
LEVEL 2 & 3
RMIT DESIGN HUB

We are in the midst of a transformation in the way we design, make and consume the objects that we depend upon. New techniques, technologies and relationships mean that the boundaries between designer, manufacturer and user are becoming increasingly blurred. Greater access to information about how objects are made, as well as access to those who traditionally make them, is revolutionising the role of the consumer so that more people than ever before are taking part in the production of our physical world. The Future Is Here asks what that means for all of us.

The Future Is Here is a touring exhibition created by the Design Museum, London, co-curated with RMIT Design Hub. Apply now to participate in RMIT Design Hub’s Volunteer program as part of The Future is Here, an exhibition from the Design Museum, London. Volunteers play an important role at the Design Hub. Volunteers are the public face of our building and assist with the day-to-day running of our public spaces. Volunteers at the Design Hub will gain valuable skills, develop new networks and gain new knowledge into a broad range of design fields.

KEY RESPONSIBILITIES:
» Greet visitors and provide directions
» Provide visitors with information about the Design Hub and The Future is Here
» Gallery sitting and security; protecting works from incorrect handling, theft and vandalism
» Maintenance of the presentation of public spaces
» General event operations support (some out of hours)
» Other relevant tasks as directed by Design Hub Staff

BENEFITS
» Skills development
» Network development
» Written references where appropriate
» Design knowledge growth
» Invitations to openings and special events

REQUIREMENTS:
1 x 4 hour shift per week for the duration of The Future is Here (Tuesday - Saturday)
